Know the Facts

- FACT ~ Right now, thousands of college coaches are searching for athletes but lack the resources to locate them.
- FACT ~ College coaches may begin recruiting athletes as early as their freshman year in high school. You should be receiving mailings regularly from college coaches. If that is not happening, you are NOT being seriously recruited.
- FACT ~ College coaches call prospects as soon as NCAA rules permit them to do so. If coaches are not calling you, you're NOT being seriously recruited.
- FACT ~ You cannot expect to be recruited by college coaches unless they know who you are and where you are.

THE ONLY REASONS WHY ATHLETES ARE NOT RECRUITED

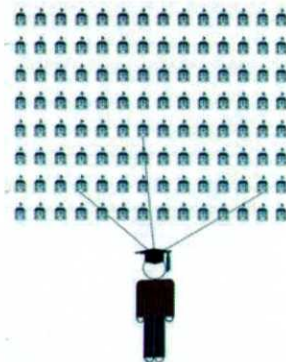

The student-athlete lacks the athletic or academic ability to compete in college.

Too few college coaches know about the student-athlete.

WHICH IS IT IN YOUR CASE?

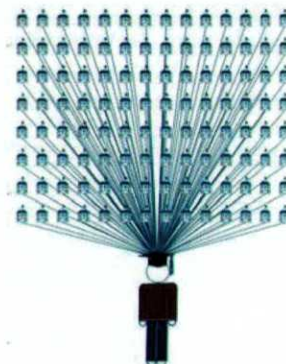

If Colleges Don't Know About You They Can't Recruit You

Right now there are hundreds of college coaches in your sport looking for athletes

Too few college coaches know about the student-athlete.

Don't Make These Common Recruiting Errors

Put all hopes in your club team or high school coach. Although many play for a high-profile HS or a travel team, families are on their own to figure out the best way to land a scholarship.

Target schools above your athletic ability. Very few athletes will ever play at the top tier programs in the country. These schools have the luxury of selecting the top blue chip athletes and begin tracking them years in advance.

Wait until it's too late or for something to happen. The earlier you start the process, the more success you will have. Your window of opportunity closes with every game you play.

Misjudge a team's needs. Just because you're interested in a school does not mean they're interested in you. If the school already has 5 athletes that play your position, do they need another one?

Contact too few schools. Want to stay in your state so family and friends can watch you play? How many others think the same way? Nothing limits your options more than just focusing on a small number of schools.

Limit options because of underexposure. The more schools that know about you, the more offers you will eventually receive. You'll have options to choose the best school for you.
